West's Chiefs Await Arrival Of Molotov

Talks In Vienna Seen Laying Groundwork For High-Level Big 4 Parley

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Russia's V. M. Molotov, flying here for the historic Austrian treaty signing, was expected to tell the Western foreign ministers today how the Kremlin feels about top level Big Four talks.

Western informants felt certain the poker-faced Soviet diplomat would seek a different sort of conference than that envisaged by the West for the Big Four heads of state this July.

The informants said word has trickled out of Moscow that Soviet Premier Nikkhai Bulganin:

1. Is ready to accept the principle of the Western call to explore new trails in quest of peace.
2. Prefers something more comprehensive than the West's idea for a three or four day conference between the heads of government, if they are to fulfill adequately the job of charting a course towards East-West understanding.
3. Intends to press demands that Red China be represented at such conference.

THE WESTERN Allies sought to make certain things clear to the Kremlin when they proposed the meeting earlier this week.

1. It was to be a short meeting.
2. The chiefs of government should themselves not negotiate but merely direct their foreign ministers how and where to proceed toward the goal of easing East-West tensions.
3. The talks should relate primarily to Europe. Thus they hoped to sidestep the Red China issue.

Molotov has been attending the Warsaw conference where Russia and seven East European Communist states pledged to help each other in peace and war.

The Warsaw meeting in effect strengthened Molotov's hand when it proclaimed an East European security alliance designed to counter the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Molotov is expected to discuss these and other East-West issues over a dinner arranged for tonight in the American embassy where he will get together with Secretary of State Dulles, Britain's Harold Macmillan and France's Antoine Pinay.

The four foreign ministers are officially gathered here for tomorrow's signing of the treaty which will pledge Austria's independence after 17 years military occupation.

CHICAGO (AP)—More rainy weather was the outlook today for broad areas of the Eastern half of the country. It also was wet in parts of the West, with some sections reporting freezing weather.

Rain and showers continued during the night and early morning over the Ohio Valley and eastward to the Atlantic Coast and along the coast from Massachusetts to South Carolina.

It was chilly in the northwest and Great Basin region with temperatures in the 40s and in the 30s in the mountains. Lowest was 24 at Mullen Pass, Mont.

Texas Mayor's Nod To Vice Brings Out New Opposition

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Texas Rangers were reported on the prowl along Galveston's joy areas today as mayor-elect George Roy Clough faced more opposition in his expressed desire to reopen the Island City's red light district.

Clough said after his election Tuesday he would allow storied old Postoffice Street to re-open in order "to get the prostitutes out of the downtown hotels."

But Dist. Atty. Marsene Johnson Jr. and Police Commissioner Walter L. Johnston said they would not allow it. The district attorney and police officials were backed by the Galveston Ministerial Assn.

Clough, owner-operator of a radio station, reiterated a post-election statement that "Christ couldn't do away with prostitution, why should I try?"

A report that the rangers were in town indicated that the state might also seek to prevent reopening of Postoffice Street.

RANGERS HARDY Purvis and Ed Oliver were said to be looking around. But Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Rangers and the State Police, said from Austin that if they were here "I don't know anything about it."

Again, Garrison answered "no comment" when asked how and if he planned to enforce the law in Galveston.

"Of course not," Garrison answered when asked if a city could operate on its own wide open.

Clough said he also would allow gambling to operate in this Gulf Island resort city, 50 miles south of Houston, but would not condone slot machines, mere possession of which is against Texas law.

"Galveston is a wide open town and is going to remain that way," Clough said. But pay-offs, he said, must stop.

He charged in a nine-month campaign that payoffs in the city were widespread. Mayor Herbert Y. Cartwright Jr. and other city officials said they knew nothing of Clough's charges.

Prostitution and all forms of gambling are against the law in Texas, but both have reportedly operated in Galveston with little interference. State police officials repeatedly have said Galveston's vice and gambling were "closed down."

Limited Arms Cut Is Hope Of Yanks

Latest Soviet Proposals Seen As Indictment Of Change Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. officials believe a limited disarmament agreement may eventually be negotiated with Russia even though world wide atomic controls seem a long way off.

Publication of proposals made by the Soviet Union and the Western Powers at a U. N. Disarmament Committee meeting in London showed today that the two sides are still far apart on the key issue of enforcements.

Informants said that even if agreement was reached on all other points, the issue of safeguards to prevent an aggressive nation from secretly preparing an atomic war is so vital there could be no overall agreement unless it also was resolved.

However, American officials and some European leaders are known to believe that it may be possible to work out plans with the Soviets to stabilize or perhaps cut back the size of forces deployed in the European area. If this limited approach did prove possible, informants say, it would have the effect of easing fears of war in Europe and reducing East-West tension.

THE STATE Department released yesterday the text of disarmament proposals which have been made by the Western Powers at the London meeting since February. Throughout the Western plans runs a strong insistence on the idea that the first step in any disarmament undertaking must be the creation of a "control organ."

The functions of the proposed agency were spelled out in a proposal presented by the United States, Britain, France, and Canada April 21. They declared that agents of the control organ would be "stationed permanently" in the cooperating countries, with the right of "unrestricted access" to all installations which might bear on that country's military power and the right to conduct "field and aerial surveys." The agents also would be assured unrestricted communication and guaranteed that they would not be harmed or interfered with.

Disclosure of the Western "plans followed by three days" Russia's publication of its latest proposal to the U. N. Committee in London. This showed strong Russian opposition to any control organ with the powers demanded by the Western nations.

"In the existing situation," the Russia note said, "when many states have displayed legitimate concern for their security, it is difficult to expect that these states access to their industrial and other resources which are of vital importance for their security."

Instead, the Soviets suggested the control agency exercise its watch dog functions at key ports, railroad and road junctions.

U. S. officials, however, say that a somewhat similar plan adopted in Communist North Korea for the enforcement of armistice terms has proved a failure.

U. S. officials said that the new Soviet plan appears to make at least four concessions to Western suggestions: (1) to impose fixed ceilings on troops strength instead of a percentage cut; (2) to abolish atomic weapons progressively rather than at the outset of disarmament; (3) to have one rather than two separate control organs; and (4) to permit the control organ to be set up in advance of disarmament. The Russians did not agree to this point, but abandoned a proposal that the control agency be set up only when troop and arms cutbacks begin.

Second Round Of Polio Shots Delayed Here

The Salk polio vaccine shots, the second round of which was originally scheduled for next week, has been indefinitely postponed for this area.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner, said today he had received no further word on when to give the second round inoculations.

City health officials could not be located today. Dr. Ned Griner, head of a committee in charge of the Circleville inoculations, was out of town for the day.

The first shot is effective for more than four weeks and even up to six months or one year, Dr. Blackburn said. He added that he was only quoting statements of Dr. Jonas Salk, discoverer of the vaccine.

"DR. SALK himself has even said that the longer period of time between shots the better," Dr. Blackburn added.

Both city and county health departments were originally given supplies equaling 90 per cent of their total first and second grade enrollments. They were instructed to retain whatever was left over.

Last week, both departments received telegrams from Dr. Ralph Dwork, state health director. The message told the departments to report how many shots they had already given and how many doses were left over.

Dr. Blackburn said that the remaining supplies were being kept under refrigeration. Labels on the bottles indicate the serum will keep its potency until next Oct. 1.

Rural Life Sunday To Draw Crowds

Despite an early forecast of cloudy weather, many district churches made preparations today to accommodate large turnouts for Rural Life Sunday.

The annual, nationwide observance is designed to focus public attention on the relationship between soil conservation work and religious faith. Don Archer, local spokesman for the soil conservation service, has emphasized how man has to preserve the land to be in true accord with his religious obligations.

Many churches in the district, especially in Pickaway County's Rural townships, have arranged special services for the day.

Last Of Refugees, Troops Leave Red-Held Haiphong

HAIPHONG, North Viet Nam (AP)—They came out from Haiphong in U. S.-built landing ships and boarded a U. S. Navy transport today, leaving behind the rich delta port and its treasures of thriving industries and nearby lush rice lands to the strict new order of Ho Chi Minh's Red Vietnam.

The last landing ship carried only one passenger, the Rev. Patrick O'Connor, correspondent for Roman Catholic newspapers.

They were the rear guard: 1,900 dark-visaged Algerians and other French Union troops; 20 French WACs weary from the strain of the past months; 500 Vietnamese refugees; a lone American priest.

The landing ships, operated by French crews, pulled alongside the American transport anchored in a long bay. Before boarding the Gen. A. W. Brewster, the Algerian troops shucked cartridges into their steel helmets. Then they poured the steel-nosed bullets into big containers for storage under double-lock while they remain aboard the U. S. naval transport.

THE TROOPS and refugees they and those who could sleep. They were going to U. S.-backed South Viet Nam. The refugees could look forward to new homes in rice land villages to the south.

Haiphong was cut off from the non-Communist world. Ten thousand Vietnamese soldiers, picked from four elite divisions which crushed the French at Dien Bien Phu, placed the seaport under martial law.

Haiphong's 236,000 residents were confined to their homes the first hours of the changeover. And they were ordered to show up today for a "victory parade."

Red China's Peiping radio said the Vietnamese soldiers were welcomed with shouts and flowers and golden-starred red flags.

French Gen. Rene Cogen transferred to his headquarters on the Do Son peninsula southeast of Haiphong. With his staff, he leaves Sunday on the steamer Pille de Haiphong for Saigon.

By Monday the Vietminh will control all the rich Red River Delta, under the Geneva settlement which gave them all of Viet Nam north of the 17th Parallel.

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—This city's fire prevention ordinance has been held unconstitutional by Judge Huber A. Beery of Sidney, sitting by assignment in Clark County.

Soviet Marshal Named To Head Military Unit

Warsaw Agreement Claimed Written Under 'Charter Of U. N.'

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—The Soviet Union and seven East European allies established a unified military command today to rival the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and made Soviet Marshal Ivan Konev the supreme commander.

The eight allies signed a 20-year mutual security and friendship treaty and a protocol placing their military forces under a single command.

A summarized text of the agreement, the outcome of a three-day conference here, was made public by Soviet spokesmen after the signing ceremony. They announced Konev's headquarters will be in Moscow. He is deputy Soviet defense minister.

Deputy commanders will be the defense ministers or other military leaders of the participating nations—the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Albania, Romania, Bulgaria and East Germany.

Each of the deputies will command forces to be allotted by his nation to the unified command. The precise nature of East Germany's contribution is to be decided later.

A PREAMBLE to the treaty declared the eight nations decided to intensify their measures for defense in face of West Germany's admission to the Atlantic Alliance.

The treaty takes effect when the last participating nation has ratified it.

The first of the 11 articles declares that the participating nations undertake, "in conformity with the United Nations charter," to refrain from the use of force in international relations and to do their utmost to solve international questions by peaceful means.

Another article declares that in case of an armed attack on any one or more of the participating states the other signatories will provide immediate help, including armed forces.

The states agreed to set up a political consultative council. The parties undertake not to (Continued on Page Two)

Judge O'Brien ordered Brewster to take a re-examination for a driver's license "for your own safety."

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE

"BARTENDER SEEN BY MAN WHO BLEW FOAM OFF BEER" This idea came to me the other night while I was appearing as a Guest on Steve Allen's night-time TV Program. I got off to a bad start because I left my eye-glasses off in order to point up my resemblance to Rock Hudson and as I walked on I fell into the orchestra. But I soon got back on stage and in no time my quips and wisecracks had the audience snickering so uproariously I could almost hear them. For a finish I drew a Mystery Droodle and the biggest laugh of the evening came when a fan in the Balcony shouted out a title for it. Personally I didn't think it was funny because it was a Droodle about a worm and calling it "Hit The Road You Bum" didn't make sense. But that's Show Business.

Ohio Lawyer Is Disbarred Second Time

URBANA (AP)—Former Urbana attorney Harvey Crow has been disbarred for the second time in his life.

A three-judge court deliberated less than an hour yesterday before finding Crow guilty on four charges and ordering him disbarred from law practice in Ohio.

Previously disbarred in 1935, Crow was resintated in 1949 when he told a Stark County Common Pleas Court he would not enter again into general law practice. He said he wanted to clear his name for his family's sake.

Crow has appealed to the Court of Appeals from denial of a motion for a change of venue in his present trial. He says the Champaign County court no longer has jurisdiction because he now lives in Cuyahoga County.

Soviet Chiefs Planning Chat In Yugoslavia

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin will meet Yugoslav President Tito in Belgrade late this month. Their talks will precede the Big Four East-West conference expected this summer.

The announcement, carried by the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, came as a surprise to observers here and abroad. Independent Communist Yugoslavia has been estranged from the Kremlin since 1948, although relations have recently bettered.

The U. S. State Department had no comment on the development. But sources in Washington and London said Yugoslavia had informed Britain and the United States of the impending visit and assured them it reflected no change in the Tito government's good relations with the West.

The Izvestia announcement said:

"With the aim of further improvements in relations between the two countries and with the aim of strengthening peace, the government of the Soviet Union and the government of Yugoslavia have decided to hold a meeting of their representatives on the highest level."

The United States has furnished Yugoslavia with millions of dollars in economic and military aid since 1948. Tito also has joined in a mutual assistance pact with Greece and Turkey, two members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Judge Berry yesterday ruled the ordinance was an "unlawful delegation of legislative authority" and granted a temporary injunction against the city. City officials had ordered the Marko Lumber and Supply Co. to halt operations at one Springfield yard on grounds it was a fire hazard.

Californians Top Active Pilot List

WASHINGTON (AP)—California has twice as many active airplane pilots as any other state, the Civil Aeronautics Administration says. Texas is in second place, with 20,202 against California's total of 40,707. Ohio has 15,417.

An active pilot is one whose medical certificate is up to date. The CAA tabulation lists a national total of 660,449 pilots, of whom 311,659 are active.

Builder Is Sued

CINCINNATI (AP)—General Electric Distributing Corp. yesterday filed a $15,271.87 suit in U. S. District Court against the Thomson Electrical Construction Co., Inc., of Portsmouth. The suit charges Thomson failed to pay for materials used in three buildings at the Pike County atomic plant.

Soviet Marshal Named To Head Military Unit

Warsaw Agreement Claimed Written Under 'Charter Of U. N.'

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—The Soviet Union and seven East European allies established a unified military command today to rival the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and made Soviet Marshal Ivan Konev the supreme commander.

The eight allies signed a 20-year mutual security and friendship treaty and a protocol placing their military forces under a single command.

A summarized text of the agreement, the outcome of a three-day conference here, was made public by Soviet spokesmen after the signing ceremony. They announced Konev's headquarters will be in Moscow. He is deputy Soviet defense minister.

Deputy commanders will be the defense ministers or other military leaders of the participating nations—the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Albania, Romania, Bulgaria and East Germany.

Each of the deputies will command forces to be allotted by his nation to the unified command. The precise nature of East Germany's contribution is to be decided later.

A PREAMBLE to the treaty declared the eight nations decided to intensify their measures for defense in face of West Germany's admission to the Atlantic Alliance.

The treaty takes effect when the last participating nation has ratified it.

The first of the 11 articles declares that the participating nations undertake, "in conformity with the United Nations charter," to refrain from the use of force in international relations and to do their utmost to solve international questions by peaceful means.

Another article declares that in case of an armed attack on any one or more of the participating states the other signatories will provide immediate help, including armed forces.

The states agreed to set up a political consultative council. The parties undertake not to (Continued on Page Two)

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE

"BARTENDER SEEN BY MAN WHO BLEW FOAM OFF BEER" This idea came to me the other night while I was appearing as a Guest on Steve Allen's night-time TV Program. I got off to a bad start because I left my eye-glasses off in order to point up my resemblance to Rock Hudson and as I walked on I fell into the orchestra. But I soon got back on stage and in no time my quips and wisecracks had the audience snickering so uproariously I could almost hear them. For a finish I drew a Mystery Droodle and the biggest laugh of the evening came when a fan in the Balcony shouted out a title for it. Personally I didn't think it was funny because it was a Droodle about a worm and calling it "Hit The Road You Bum" didn't make sense. But that's Show Business.

Little Trouble Experienced In May Primary

State Elections Chief Says Only 3 Demands For Recount Of Votes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Three demands to recount votes rippled the general calm of Ohio's odd-year primary elections, reports to Secretary of State Ted W. Brown showed today.

Official returns broke a tie vote in a preliminary count and disclosed a few close races in bids for nomination by candidates for mayor, city council and various local offices.

But balloting generally bore out Brown's prediction of light voting. "The primaries, May 3," Brown reported, "were conducted with a great degree of smoothness; with a minimum of difficulties reported by the boards of elections, the candidates and the public."

"Many times the odd-year elections offer the greatest problems but it can safely be said that the 1955 record is one of which we may all be justly proud. The boards of elections are to be congratulated."

Although some 120,000 officials and workers usually are needed for an Ohio election, the total for the primaries was far less. Barely a hundred municipalities in 52 of Ohio's 88 counties conducted voting.

Only 45 municipalities held both Republican and Democratic primaries because of contests for office in both parties. Others held only one primary because contests party. Nominees will fight it out for election Nov. 8.

The recounts will get under way Monday in Steubenville. The dispute there involves the Democratic nomination for city solicitor.

Leroy G. Schell emerged from a three-way race 22 votes ahead of Hyman Stern and Stern demanded a recount. The official winner will oppose Solicitor William M. Downer, Republican incumbent, next November. Downer was nominated without opposition.

Wellston and Blanchester will be the scenes of later recounts. In the Jackson County city of Wellston, James F. Rider claimed the Democratic nomination for mayor by a single vote over Charles W. Fitzpatrick in a three-man race. Fitzpatrick promptly sought a recount.

The winner will face Everett W. Gettles in the fall pay-off election. Gettles won the GOP nomination over two opponents.

In Blanchester, Clinton County, Robert B. Moses asked a new count in the contest for village council. He ran behind sixth place Roy Cadwallader in the 11-man Democratic race for nomination. The council has six members.

Official returns broke a tie in the Democratic race for mayor at Greenville, Darke County. The unofficial tally gave Tillman Hathaway and Max Harley 228 votes apiece. Harley lost five on the official count. Hathaway next fall will oppose Mark O. Baughn, Republican nominated without opposition.

Heavily Democratic Campbell, Youngstown suburb, reported a bigger voter turnout than even for presidential election years. Because Republicans had no primary, officials said they voted in Democratic contests to have an expression in city government. Democratic nomination is tantamount to election in the suburb, officials explained.

Mayor Michael J. Kovach won renomination over Joseph A. Vrabel. But crusading City Solicitor Paul R. Van Such ran third behind attorney Frank Woychik and former Mayor Joseph E. Julius in the solicitor race.

Van Such campaigned on his record of closing more than a score of Campbell resorts following gambling raids in recent years.

Without elaboration, Secretary of State Brown said he sent an observer to Campbell for the primary election. The result will be several recommendations to the Mahoning County Board of Elections before November, Brown added.

Ohio Farmers Set For Wheat Ballot

Buckeye State May Again Vote Against High, Rigid U.S. Props

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson is getting ready to ask many Ohio farmers a highly controversial question.

They will be requested to say whether they want their wheat crops limited again in 1956 in order to retain high price supports.

The question will be posed in a referendum some time before July 25. All the states will participate, of course.

But in Ohio, and a number of other Midwest states, wheat farmers have been remarkably cool to the idea.

To illustrate this: In 1953, the national result was 87.2 per cent favorable to high supports and wheat acreage limitations. The Ohio percentage that year was 66.2.

Then, last year, farmers nationally approved the program by 73.3 per cent (66.6 per cent is required), while Ohioans returned only a 35.1 per cent approval. That was the smallest percentage of all the states that raised wheat worth mentioning.

WHAT IS GOING to happen this year?

A leading supporter of the program, Rep. Clifford Hope (R-Kan.), says he is afraid the nation's farmers will vote it down. If that prediction turns out to be correct, then supports will drop from around 90 per cent of parity, a figure fixed as a "fair" price, to 50 per cent. In other words, there will be a free market.

Another farm expert in Congress, Chairman Harold Cooley (D-NC) of the House Agriculture Committee, says he would regard this outcome as a calamity.

"Why, the farmers would bury themselves under wheat, and wheat prices would be completely demoralized," Cooley said.

Both he and Hope said they will try to persuade Congress to take some new action if the farmers decide to drop the wheat controls program overboard.

Many Ohio congressmen say the Ohio opposition to the program would be a lot greater in the referendum if farmers growing less than 15 acres of wheat were permitted to vote.

In fact, Rep. Jackson Betts, a Findlay Republican, has introduced a bill to permit farmers with any acreage of wheat to cast ballots.

IT IS BETTS' idea, shared by many other Ohio farm district Republicans, that small wheat growers frequently want to grow a little more than 15 acres but don't want to bother with price supports.

On the other hand, a lot of other Ohio farmers feel like the Tuscawawas County farmer who wrote Rep. Frank T. Bow, Canton Republican:

"It seems to me a rigid farm price control would be more effective."

Nevertheless, there are also Ohio farmers who can't believe that abandoning crop controls would mean disaster for them.

One Ohio woman, who with her husband owns 260 acres, wrote Bow:

"It would be rough on us farmers for a while, but eventually the law of demand and supply would even the market out."

There will be a card party in the Amanda High School, Saturday night, May 14 starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. James Sparks and daughter were released Friday from Berger Hospital to their home on Circleville Route 2.

House-building Sets Record Pace

WASHINGTON (AP)—Homebuilders continued through April to build more houses in 1955 than in the 1950 record year.

The Labor Department reported today that 421,600 home units have been put under construction from January through April this year.

This compared with 412,300 for the same four-month period in 1950 when a record number of 1,396,000 homes were started.

Housing starts totaled 127,000 in April, or 18 per cent above the same month last year.

Public Education Revival Is Sought

CINCINNATI (AP)—Roy E. Larsen yesterday told the Citizens School Foundation of Cincinnati that he hoped 1955 would be the "year when America comes of age in assuming responsibility for public education."

Larsen, chairman of the National Citizens Commission for Public Schools and president of Time, Inc., said a rising tide of public interest in schools can help combat enrollment increases and teacher shortages.

Death Of Scion Labeled Mystery

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Police say that Thomas W. Warner Jr., 40-year-old heir to an auto parts fortune, died as the result of an accidental fall.

But his fourth wife, estranged but not divorced, said through her attorney she wants an inquest to determine whether Warner met death through foul play.

Her lawyer said she is hiring private detectives to check Warner's activities in the hours preceding his death early yesterday.

Warner, whose father developed the Borg Warner Co., was found dead—his neck broken—at the foot of a 12-foot embankment on his mother's Pasadena estate.

join any alliance in contradiction to this treaty.

The pact contains provisions for economic and cultural relations. The ninth article states that the treaty is open to all other countries, irrespective of their social and political systems.

The treaty runs for 20 years and will remain in force for 10 years longer unless any participant renounces it. The treaty will automatically be dissolved if any all-European collective security system is devised.

KONEV WILL have at his Moscow headquarters a permanent staff made up of representatives of each participating country.

West European diplomats believe the actual signing of the pact in Warsaw does not change the existing situation. The Soviets have been in over-all command of the military among their satellites for some time. But the pact gives the Russians a legal framework under which Soviet troops can remain in the satellite nations.

Sales Tax Data Here Holds To Steady Uptrend

Surpassing the four million dollar mark for the first time in the calendar year, tax revenues from the sale of prepaid tax receipts for the week ending April 30, 1955, soared $4,128,237, according to a report issued by State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy.

This amount reflects an increase of $658,514, or 18.97 per cent in excess of last year's receipts of $3,469,723, reported for the corresponding week which ended May 1, 1954.

Pickaway County figures continued to reflect the rising tide in this latest check on the reliable trade barometer. Sales tax receipts in the county for the week ending April 30 totaled $8,440. For the corresponding week of last year, in this district, they amounted to $7,341.58.

All but one of the eight major industry classifications registered statewide gains compared with totals for the same week in 1954. The only decline noted was in the apparel group which dropped 7.07 per cent.

LARGEST INCREASES were $281,757, or 28.76 per cent, for motor vehicle sales, and $105,558, or 24.95 per cent, for the building classification.

Tracy said the cumulative grand total from prepaid tax receipts and other collections for the first 10 months of the current fiscal year, which began last July 1, now stands at $164,895,230.

Compared with the over-all grand total collections of $160,008,918, reported on May 1, 1954, for the corresponding first ten months of the previous fiscal year, this amount represents an increase of $4,886,312, or 3.05 per cent.

June 25 Set As Date For Wheat Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—Farmers will vote on 1956 wheat controls June 25—long enough before the adjournment of Congress to permit possible changes in the law if the restrictive program is rejected.

Under the program announced by Secretary of Agriculture Benson yesterday, wheat planting and marketing would be limited to 55 million acres, the minimum permitted by law, by means of acreage allotments and marketing quotas.

Benson said a two-year supply made it necessary under the law that he invoke the rigid controls if high price supports are to continue.

To become effective, the control program must be approved by at least two-thirds of the farmers voting in the referendum, which Benson set for June 25.

Two Injured As Result Of Odd Accident

At least two persons were injured in an unusual accident early Saturday morning on Route 23, 4.5 miles north of Circleville.

State Patrolman Gene Miller reported the mishap started when a motorist stopped just as another car, coming from the opposite direction, skidded off the road. A second car hit the rear of the stopped car.

Driver of the stopped car is listed as Jonathan B. Allen, 30, of Detroit, Mich. The car which struck him was driven by Billy W. Elkins, 24, of Sandusky, who is being cited for failure to have assured clear distance.

All the injured were in Elkins' car. They include: Allen C. Elkins, 51, with lacerated left ear and chest injuries; and Clifton Edwards, 25, laceration of the chin and tongue.

Driver of the car which skidded off the highway is Dallas Williamson, 46, of Ashville Route 1. He was not injured nor did his car suffer damage. Both the other cars were demolished, according to Patrolman Miller.

Ohio Awaiting Nod On Vaccine

Inspectors Eye Lab Providing Polio Shots

By The Associated Press

Ohio health officials were standing by today for a go-ahead in the use of Salk anti-polio vaccine.

Federal Public Health Service experts were reported to be in Indianapolis checking the Eli Lilly & Co. laboratory and its supply of the vaccine. All of the Ohio shots came from this source.

Yesterday, the Federal Public Health Service gave clearance to vaccine produced by Parke, Davis & Co. of Michigan.

Ohio health officials say none of the Parke, Davis vaccine is in Ohio for the school inoculation program.

Dr. Martin Keller, acting chief of the division of communicable diseases, said some of the vaccine possibly is in the hands of private doctors. Doctors who inquire will be told whether their supply is from the lots released.

THE VACCINE involved was distributed prior to a federal recommendation that polio vaccinations be halted pending further checks on laboratory testing.

Yesterday, Dr. Ralph E. Dwork, head of Ohio's health department, reported that "not one single proven case" of polio had developed among the 377,436 school children inoculated in this state. All received the Lilly-produced vaccine.

The government has turned loose enough vaccine for "over a million more" school children.

Several state health officers approved immediate resumption of their mass vaccination programs on receiving word yesterday that the Public Health Service had cleared 11 batches of vaccine made by Parke, Davis.

Some of the states will start Monday. School is out for the weekend in most places.

U. S. Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele announced late yesterday that a Health Service team had completed its recheck of 4,250,000ccs of the Parke-Davis product. He said some three fourths of this total already had been used, but that "over a million more children can now be vaccinated" with the remainder, beginning at once. One shot takes one cc of the vaccine.

An estimated 5 1/2 million children already have received the first of a three-shot series.

BRING A FRIEND TO CHURCH WITH YOU

Rural Life Sunday Will Be Observed By Presbyterians

Rural Life Sunday, or Rogation Day, will mark the worship service at the Presbyterian Church Sunday.

A careful study of the Scriptures discloses some surprisingly basic laws governing the right use of farm lands, which all people should know about.

It is far more unwise to ignore these laws than it is to ignore the laws of good health! For the latter can concern only one family and any unfortunate affected by diseases communicated by that family. But whole nations, whole civilizations have been destroyed by ignoring the natural laws of soil conservation.

A generation of peoples which live only unto themselves,—which exploits the good earth and takes no thought for its children and its children's children—is guilty of contributing to a "scorched earth" policy of burned out soil, loosened and flushed off down stream to the sea.

Christian stewardship of the soil is a very distinct and wise teaching of God's Word, which seeks the greatest good for the greatest number of people, as well as the greatest good for each individual person.

The Rev. Donald Mitchell will preach on the theme from Ezekiel 34:31, "The Flock of My Pasture, Are Men."

The choir will sing the anthem, "More Love to Thee, O Christ." Miss Donna Mitchell will sing the soprano solo part with Mrs. Clark Will directing.

"Praise Ye The Lord", "This Is My Father's World" and "Fairest Lord Jesus" are among the hymns to be sung for the occasion.

At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L. Huston will play: Russell's, "The Bells of St Anne de Beaupre"; "Nocturne in F minor", by Chopin; and Mendelssohn's "The March of the Priests".

In the evening, the Couples Club meets in the Social Rooms of the church, with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Grigg, Mr. and Mrs. John Alderman and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Carr hosts and hostesses in charge. The guest speaker for the evening program will be Charles Will, who will use as his subject, "Circleville".

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell will attend a church-wide Family Emphases Conference at the South Salem Presbyterian Church all day Tuesday. The Rev. Irvine Dungan is host pastor.

Bible Words To Live By

MATTHEW 6:11 — "Give us this day our daily bread."

Startling words at the center of the Lord's Prayer. "Give us . . . daily bread," physical sustenance.

All too much religion in the Western World proclaims a split between the spiritual and the material. This was not true with Jesus. The material was an evidence of the spiritual and He kept them together.

The abundant production of the earth is evidence of God's concern for physical life. He can produce enough for the need of every human life.

The millions who are hungry in this world is the result of man's ingratitude to God. Thus we are unable to find constructive ways to distribute daily bread.

Here is where we should begin to defeat Communism. We can think and be thankful. Then, we can find the way to extend His kingdom of love for all men and the whole of their lives upon this earth.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

BRING A FRIEND TO CHURCH WITH YOU

Rural Life Sunday Will Be Observed By Presbyterians

Rural Life Sunday, or Rogation Day, will mark the worship service at the Presbyterian Church Sunday.

A careful study of the Scriptures discloses some surprisingly basic laws governing the right use of farm lands, which all people should know about.

It is far more unwise to ignore these laws than it is to ignore the laws of good health! For the latter can concern only one family and any unfortunate affected by diseases communicated by that family. But whole nations, whole civilizations have been destroyed by ignoring the natural laws of soil conservation.

A generation of peoples which live only unto themselves,—which exploits the good earth and takes no thought for its children and its children's children—is guilty of contributing to a "scorched earth" policy of burned out soil, loosened and flushed off down stream to the sea.

Christian stewardship of the soil is a very distinct and wise teaching of God's Word, which seeks the greatest good for the greatest number of people, as well as the greatest good for each individual person.

The Rev. Donald Mitchell will preach on the theme from Ezekiel 34:31, "The Flock of My Pasture, Are Men."

The choir will sing the anthem, "More Love to Thee, O Christ". Miss Donna Mitchell will sing the soprano solo part with Mrs. Clark Will directing.

"Praise Ye The Lord", "This Is My Father's World" and "Fairest Lord Jesus" are among the hymns to be sung for the occasion.

At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L. Huston will play: Russell's, "The Bells of St. Anne de Beaupre"; "Nocturne in F minor", by Chopin; and Mendelssohn's "The March of the Priests".

In the evening, the Couples Club meets in the Social Rooms of the church, with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Grigg, Mr. and Mrs. John Alderman and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Carr hosts and hostesses in charge. The guest speaker for the evening program will be Charles Will, who will use as his subject, "Circleville".

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell will attend a church-wide Family Emphases Conference at the South Salem Presbyterian Church all day Tuesday. The Rev. Irvine Dungan is host pastor.

Nursery service is now provided both for infants and small children during the Sunday school and the worship hour.

Bible Words To Live By

MATTHEW 6:11 — "Give us this day our daily bread."

Starting words at the center of the Lord's Prayer, "Give us . . . daily bread," physical sustenance. All too much religion in the Western World proclaims a split between the spiritual and the material. This was not true with Jesus. The material was an evidence of the spiritual and He kept them together.

The abundant production of the earth is evidence of God's concern for physical life. He can produce enough for the need of every human life.

The millions who are hungry in this world is the result of man's ingratitude to God. Thus we are unable to find constructive ways to distribute daily bread.

Here is where we should begin to defeat Communism. We can think and be thankful. Then, we can find the way to extend His kingdom of love for all men and the whole of their lives upon this earth.

A WHEAT WORRY

NATIONAL wheat expectations for this year's crop are the lowest since 1940. If the crop approximates the 839 million bushels now anticipated, or the yield is smaller, government stocks now totalling a billion bushels would be reduced slightly in the next 12 months.

The U. S. uses approximately 700 million bushels a year and there should be enough exports to consume more than the remainder of the 1955 crop. Thus the huge surpluses which have plagued the government ever since the war would shrink.

But a new worry has arisen—what will happen to the government support program when wheat producers vote in July on whether to continue or reject it. With acreage reduction reported to be unpopular, more than a third of them may vote against continuing the program. Controls will go by the board unless approved by two-thirds of those voting.

Government officials fear that farmers might cut adrift from bureaucracy in the conviction that the open market price in the immediate future will be held to a satisfactory level by the law of supply and demand. The fact that part of the government-held surplus is segregated and not considered as a factor makes the prospect of a free market and acreage freed from controls still more attractive to wheat farmers.

If farmers reject the present program, where will be panicky efforts by politicians to find a substitute that will remove all possibility of a wheat price decline during the election year of 1956.

HOME RULE LAG

IN THE 46 state legislative sessions this year little or no progress was made in solving a major problem of government. That is the issue of state control of municipal affairs.

State legislatures continue to strangle local initiative, curb local responsibility put unnecessary expenditures on local taxpayers and set up roadblocks to the extension of new services needed to keep pace with municipal growth.

States have a three-day stranglehold on cities. The legislatures pass laws. State courts render judicial decisions interpreting state laws affecting local governments. And the executive departments exercise administrative curbs.

States do aid local governments by technical assistance and the return of some of the revenue which communities pay to the states. But big cities especially are on the losing end because they pay in much more than they ever receive in return in any form.

All this started when state constitutions were adopted generations ago arrogating to the states most of the powers over local governments. It would be ended directly by constitutional reform to bring the charters up to date.

Big cities are mature enough in government experience to be trusted with big decisions. But the states show no willingness to give up any of their powers.

SAVING THE LAND

SECRETARY OF Agriculture Benson and his staff of experts are back in Washington after an inspection tour of the drought areas of the plains, where they saw the effects of lack of rainfall complicated by blowing soil, with the current wheat crop deteriorating hourly.

Secretary Benson learned the story first hand from actual dirt farmers, who greeted him in large number at every stop. They all told the same story. The land is productive if there is sufficient rain.

Benson sees the need for drought relief to meet present emergencies. In addition there must be a long-range management program which will make farming successful even through periods of drought.

The job for Benson and his department, and all others concerned, is to save the land in a vast area which in the past has helped feed the world by providing bumper crops of wheat. Benson says 80 per cent of the land involved can be cultivated successfully if it is farmed as if every year were to be a drought year.

If Benson can show them the way, farmers of the higher plains area will follow. Those who suggest that they should abandon their land are giving advice that will not be followed.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In the British Isles an election campaign is moving toward its climax on May 26. In many ways, it is a crucial election because if the Conservatives hold a majority in Parliament, it means that the British people support the policies which Churchill pursued and Eden will now carry forward. Should Labour win a sizable majority in Parliament, it will mean that the British people prefer socialism and that the alliance with the United States is in danger.

The British vote for parties rather than men, as their political life is more sharply based on parties than ours. They could not have bi-partisan attitudes unless a coalition government were formally authorized with representation in the Cabinets. Nor could a "Kitchen Cabinet" prevail over formally responsible officials, as each Cabinet officer, from the Prime Minister down is elected to Parliament, sits in Parliament while he serves in the Cabinet and answers direct questions on the floor of his House.

In this sense, British officials are more responsible directly to the people than are American officials. For instance, under our system, a Cabinet officer need not be responsible to a Congressional committee; he can silence requests for information by taking refuge in an Executive Order. In Great Britain, the Cabinet officer must defend his policies and actions publicly in Parliament and if he declined to answer a question, he would be very unwise, indeed, if he did not explain why and make the explanation hold.

In Great Britain, a man works his way up. His first task is to get into Parliament. He cannot just be a candidate because he wants to be one; he must be acceptable to the management of his party. If elected, he respectfully sits on the back-bench meanwhile displaying to his elders whatever gifts he possesses.

If his ambitions lead to administration in government, he may be given opportunities to prove himself in whatever ministries his talents indicate. If he is particularly brilliant and the party leaders feel secure in his character and personality, he may be moved along with some speed; if he shows himself to be a mere hack, his promotions may be slowed up or there may be no promotions. The party management makes the decisions.

A member of the House of Commons is always on public display. He must learn to wait his turn and not to step on the heels of his elders. Sir Anthony Eden waited nearly a decade for Churchill to retire, and he waited gracefully and loyally. Were it otherwise, he would not today be the Prime Minister.

I shall be in England next week, and shall try to get figures on election expenses. In the 1956 Presidential election in the United States, the cost, both public and hidden, will be stupendous. With both parties vying for television time, the election will be a carnival of profligate waste. Millions of dollars have to be found not only for the election campaign but for the pre-convention campaign.

For instance, among the Democrats, Adlai Stevenson and Averell Harriman are preparing their stance for the convention; also Estes Kefauver and Stuart Symington are in the running—and it is more than a year before any convention will be held. In Great Britain, the campaign is limited to three weeks and radio and television are limited in their uses for campaign purposes.

No one is nominated for Prime Minister; the man who will eventually hold that office, by appointment of the Queen, will be elected to a seat in the House of Commons, from what is equivalent to a Congressional district in the United States. He speaks not to the entire nation but to his particular constituency. Usually, a man who is so important runs in what is regarded as a safe constituency. The method is simpler than ours and less expensive.

In these circumstances, a "Kitchen Cabinet," or a coterie of old cronies, such as often develops in our country, would be regarded as scandalous, because its members would be irresponsible. The essence of the British system is direct responsibility to a constituency and loyalty to a party.

It is impossible for the United States to employ the British system for many valid historic reasons. Nevertheless, there is much to learn from the British way of doing things, particularly their resistance to the unbridled use of money in political campaigns.

It is proposed to alter the traditional caricature of Uncle Sam. But in the new design he should be depicted with both hands in his pockets.

Safety Tests Made On the Salk Vaccine

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

HOW safe is the Salk vaccine? Is there any chance that it might cause polio in your child instead of protecting him from the disease?

With any new medical development such as Salk vaccine, there are bound to be questions like these.

Live and Dead Viruses

Live polio virus, of course, can cause paralysis and even death. The Salk vaccine, however, is made of dead virus. A solution of formaldehyde removes the ability of the virus to cause disease.

To be certain that no particles of live virus remain in the vaccine, samples of it are injected directly into the central nervous system and into the muscles of several healthy monkeys. For four weeks or more, these animals are kept under careful observation.

Testing the Virus

If the vaccine causes any sickness among the monkeys, or if there is evidence of infection in any animal, that particular lot of vaccine is discarded.

There are more tests, too. Quantities of vaccine are added to living cells growing in test tubes under controlled conditions. The vaccine is discarded if there is any sign that the virus is growing or attacking the cells.

Final Check

As a final check, samples of the vaccine are injected into mice, guinea pigs and rabbits to determine whether it contains any substance other than the polio virus which might cause a harmful reaction.

These safety tests are conducted carefully on each batch of vaccine by each pharmaceutical manufacturer.

But that isn't all.

The Laboratory of Biologics Control of the National Institute of Health of the United States Public Health Service conducts further checks before any lot of vaccine is released for use. Thus, every effort is made to protect your child.

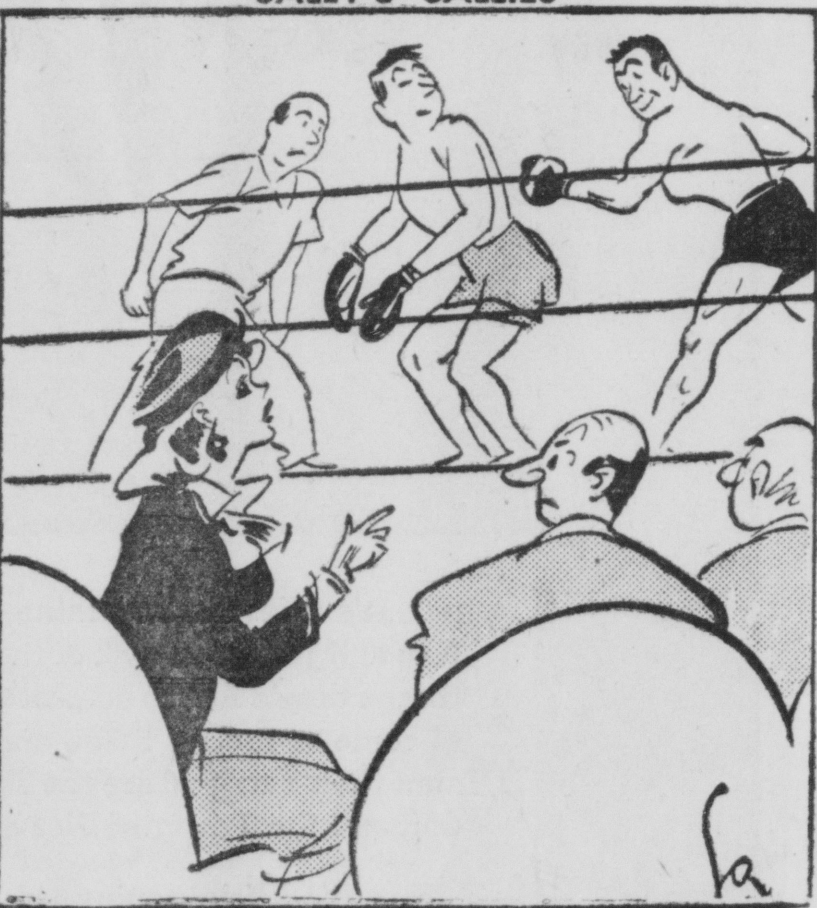

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. H. F.: Can kidney stones be dissolved, and should a person go on a special diet and eliminate alcohol and exercise?

Answer: Insofar as is known at present, there is no way of dissolving kidney stones. A special diet is advisable. Alcohol should not be employed. Exercise will be of no particular value.

An operation is usually necessary to eliminate the stones.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

NO MORE demoralizing crack-ups, he meant, really. "I'm sorry, Eric," Landon swallowed. "I didn't mean to go to pieces."

"You were tired," he said. "Get to bed early tonight."

There was no false note in his voice. His casual acceptance of an unchanged status was genuine, not an act. "Yes," said Landon, gratefully.

By tomorrow, she thought, I'll have forgotten that last night ever happened.

Astonishingly, the one who remembered and who had no intention whatever of allowing Landon to forget, was Merry-o. That night, when Landon went in as usual to hear her prayers, the light was out. Landon switched it on.

"I am asleep," said Merry-o coldly.

"You forgot your prayers, dear." "I managed them alone, thank you."

She was lying rigidly under the bedcovers; she looked badly shaken, and hostile. Children forget easily was suddenly an unbelievable aphorism. Landon turned out the light and fled.

It was a week before she could endure the thought of lime green repp, much less work on it. Then, as much to her surprise as Eric's, the pieces went together perfectly—though Eric refused any of the credit.

"Beginner's luck," he said.

"You're wonderful!" said Landon.

Merry-o's mouth set in a straight line. "I hate that color." "It's just right for this room," said Landon.

"I don't care. I hate it. Mommy will hate it, too."

Wisely or unwisely, Landon refrained from prolonging the trivial dispute. Merry-o was proving difficult, lately. Wayward and wilful. It was disturbing. Rather than chance a rebuff, Landon often remained silent regardless of whether Merry-o was right or wrong.

It couldn't, of course, go on like this. They must come to an understanding, and very soon, before Merry-o assumed that she could rule the roost by her whims.

The telephone rang one afternoon just as Landon was about to drive Merry-o to her "best" friend's birthday party.

"Hurry," urged Merry-o. "Hurry, Landon, or I'll be late."

Landon lifted the receiver. "Sit down a minute, darling."

"I can't sit down! I'll wrinkle!" "You are in a bang-up dither!" "Me?" asked Scott Wylie.

Landon laughed. "Oh, Scott, hello."

"Who's in a dither?" "Scott-o. I'm driving her to a party."

Merry-o said, "Would you like to go to the Sunday Nine O'clock? The season is opening this week with a violinist, Szymon Goldberg."

"Dinner first, somewhere?" "Sounds nice."

"All right. See you Sunday." "By, Scott."

Merry-o was bouncing up and down. "I feel gay as a doorbell! Hurry, Landon!"

Landon dug the car keys from her purse. "Let's go, then, Pump-kin."

In a flash the brightness left Merry-o's face. "Don't," she said furiously. She planted her feet apart and clenched her fists. "Don't you call me that. Don't you ever! It's Mommy's name for me."

Landon lost her breath and recovered it in a gasp. "It's Daddy's name for you, too, isn't it?"

"It was Mommy's first. She made it up for me. It's special!" She met Landon's eyes accusingly. "No one can take my Mommy's place," she said clearly. "No one. With me or daddy."

There was a fresh snowfall on Sunday, and Scott came early. "Let's go for a walk before dinner," he said, "if you like fresh snow?"

"Mmmmm-hmmmm." She put on her gray squirrel jacket and Scott helped her into her snowboots.

Laughing, they went out into the pale light of late afternoon. The roofs were white, the shrubs and trees heavy with silver. New snow softened everything, angles, footfalls, voices.

"You look nice with snow in your hair," said Scott. "You look—" he said lamely—"nice." He grinned. "I'd get about a minus zero in an Activity Vector Analysis if that's the best I can do with an adjective!"

"Activity what?" "It's one of our 10-minute personality defining tests—you select adjectives from a list."

"Nice is fine," she told him happily.

She liked Scott Wylie, everything about him, his looks, his brains . . . though sometimes she wondered if he were applying some of his slide-rule tests to her; measuring her intelligence and attitudes, appraising her qualities and potential worth, as he did in his capacity as an industrial psychologist. A man who knew all the personality-defining questions undoubtedly knew all the answers. You'd have a hard time fooling Scott about people, or hiding anything from him.

But what did she have to hide from him?

Their faces were tingling with cold when they went back to Scott's car and drove out the highway to the Cobblestone Inn, a once stately private residence with turrets and gables.

The waiter gave them a table near the fireplace. After their order was taken, Scott said, "I am going out of town tomorrow."

"Oh?" "To deliver some sedatives for a few industrial management headaches," he said.

"What about personal headaches—have you cure-alls for those, too?"

He slanted her a quizzical look. "Try me."

She stared down at her hands. Scott was too perceptive. If she talked about her problem with Merry-o, none of its undeniable inferences would escape him. I'll contend with it myself, she thought. She looked up with a smile and shook her head.

Their dinner came—broiled steaks, rolls, a green salad, coffee.

"Are you trying to reassure me, Landon—or justify yourself?"

A WHEAT WORRY
NATIONAL wheat expectations for this year's crop are the lowest since 1940. If the crop approximates the 839 million bushels now anticipated, or the yield is smaller, government stocks now totalling a billion bushels would be reduced slightly in the next 12 months.

The U. S. uses approximately 700 million bushels a year and there should be enough exports to consume more than the remainder of the 1955 crop. Thus the huge surpluses which have plagued the government ever since the war would shrink.

But a new worry has arisen—what will happen to the government support program when wheat producers vote in July on whether to continue or reject it. With acreage reduction reported to be unpopular, more than a third of them may vote against continuing the program. Controls will go by the board unless approved by two-thirds of those voting.

Government officials fear that farmers might cut adrift from bureaucracy in the conviction that the open market price in the immediate future will be held to a satisfactory level by the law of supply and demand. The fact that part of the government-held surplus is segregated and not considered as a factor makes the prospect of a free market and acreage freed from controls still more attractive to wheat farmers.

If farmers reject the present program, where will be panicky efforts by politicians to find a substitute that will remove all possibility of a wheat price decline during the election year of 1956.

HOME RULE LAG

IN THE 46 state legislative sessions this year little or no progress was made in solving a major problem of government. That is the issue of state control of municipal affairs.

State legislatures continue to strangle local initiative, curb local responsibility put unnecessary expenditures on local taxpayers and set up roadblocks to the extension of new services needed to keep pace with municipal growth.

States have a three-day stranglehold on cities. The legislatures pass laws. State courts render judicial decisions interpreting state laws affecting local governments. And the executive departments exercise administrative curbs.

States do aid local governments by technical assistance and the return of some of the revenue which communities pay to the states. But big cities especially are on the losing end because they pay in much more than they ever receive in return in any form.

All this started when state constitutions were adopted generations ago arrogating to the states most of the powers over local governments. It would be ended directly by constitutional reform to bring the charters up to date.

Big cities are mature enough in government experience to be trusted with big decisions. But the states show no willingness to give up any of their powers.

SAVING THE LAND

SECRETARY OF Agriculture Benson and his staff of experts are back in Washington after an inspection tour of the drought areas of the plains, where they saw the effects of lack of rainfall complicated by blowing soil, with the current wheat crop deteriorating hourly.

Secretary Benson learned the story first hand from actual dirt farmers, who greeted him in large number at every stop. They all told the same story. The land is productive if there is sufficient rain.

Benson sees the need for drought relief to meet present emergencies. In addition there must be a long-range management program which will make farming successful even through periods of drought.

The job for Benson and his department, and all others concerned, is to save the land in a vast area which in the past has helped feed the world by providing bumper crops of wheat. Benson says 80 per cent of the land involved can be cultivated successfully if it is farmed as if every year were to be a drought year.

If Benson can show them the way, farmers of the higher plains area will follow. Those who suggest that they should abandon their land are giving advice that will not be followed.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In the British Isles an election campaign is moving toward its climax on May 26. In many ways, it is a crucial election because if the Conservatives hold a majority in Parliament, it means that the British people support the policies which Churchill pursued and Eden will now carry forward. Should Labour win a sizable majority in Parliament, it will mean that the British people prefer socialism and that the alliance with the United States is in danger.

The British vote for parties rather than men, as their political life is more sharply based on parties than ours. They could not have bi-partisan attitudes unless a coalition government were formally authorized with representation in the Cabinets. Nor could a "Kitchen Cabinet" prevail over formally responsible officials, as each Cabinet officer, from the Prime Minister down is elected to Parliament, sits in Parliament while he serves in the Cabinet and answers direct questions on the floor of his House.

In this sense, British officials are more responsible directly to the people than are American officials. For instance, under our system, a Cabinet officer need not be responsible to a Congressional committee; he can silence requests for information by taking refuge in an Executive Order. In Great Britain, the Cabinet officer must defend his policies and actions publicly in Parliament and if he declined to answer a question, he would be very unwise, indeed, if he did not explain why and make the explanation hold.

In Great Britain, a man works his way up. His first task is to get into Parliament. He cannot just be a candidate because he wants to be one; he must be acceptable to the management of his party. If elected, he respectfully sits on the back-bench meanwhile displaying to his elders whatever gifts he possesses.

If his ambitions lead to administration in government, he may be given opportunities to prove himself in whatever ministries his talents indicate. If he is particularly brilliant and the party leaders feel secure in his character and personality, he may be moved along with some speed; if he shows himself to be a mere hack, his promotions may be slowed up or there may be no promotions. The party management makes the decisions.

A member of the House of Commons is always on public display. He must learn to wait his turn and not to step on the heels of his elders. Sir Anthony Eden waited nearly a decade for Churchill to retire, and he waited gracefully and loyally. Were it otherwise, he would not today be the Prime Minister.

I shall be in England next week, and shall try to get figures on election expenses. In the 1956 Presidential election in the United States, the cost, both public and hidden, will be stupendous. With both parties vying for television time, the election will be a carnival of profligate waste. Millions of dollars have to be found not only for the election campaign but for the pre-convention campaign.

For instance, among the Democrats, Adlai Stevenson and Averell Harriman are preparing their stance for the convention; also Estes Kefauver and Stuart Symington are in the running—and it is more than a year before any convention will be held.

In Great Britain, the campaign is limited to three weeks and radio and television are limited in their uses for campaign purposes.

No one is nominated for Prime Minister; the man who will eventually hold that office, by appointment of the Queen, will be elected to a seat in the House of Commons, from what is equivalent to a Congressional district in the United States. He speaks not to the entire nation but to his particular constituency. Usually, a man who is so important runs in what is regarded as a safe constituency. The method is simpler than ours and less expensive.

In these circumstances, a "Kitchen Cabinet," or a coterie of old cronies, such as often develops in our country, would be regarded as scandalous, because its members would be irresponsible. The essence of the British system is direct responsibility to a constituency and loyalty to a party.

It is impossible for the United States to employ the British system for many valid historic reasons. Nevertheless, there is much to learn from the British way of doing things, particularly their resistance to the unbridled use of money in political campaigns.

It is proposed to alter the traditional caricature of Uncle Sam. But in the new design he should be depicted with both hands in his pockets.

Safety Tests Made On the Salk Vaccine

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

HOW safe is the Salk vaccine? Is there any chance that it might cause polio in your child instead of protecting him from the disease?

With any new medical development such as Salk vaccine, there are bound to be questions like these.

Live and Dead Viruses

Live polio virus, of course, can cause paralysis and even death. The Salk vaccine, however, is made of dead virus. A solution of formaldehyde removes the ability of the virus to cause disease.

To be certain that no particles of live virus remain in the vaccine, samples of it are injected directly into the central nervous system and into the muscles of several healthy monkeys. For four weeks or more, these animals are kept under careful observation.

Testing the Virus

If the vaccine causes any sickness among the monkeys, or if there is evidence of infection in any animal, that particular lot of vaccine is discarded.

There are more tests, too. Quantities of vaccine are added to living cells growing in test tubes under controlled conditions. The vaccine is discarded if there is any sign that the virus is growing or attacking the cells.

Final Check

As a final check, samples of the vaccine are injected into mice, guinea pigs and rabbits to determine whether it contains any substance other than the polio virus which might cause a harmful reaction.

These safety tests are conducted carefully on each batch of vaccine by each pharmaceutical manufacturer.

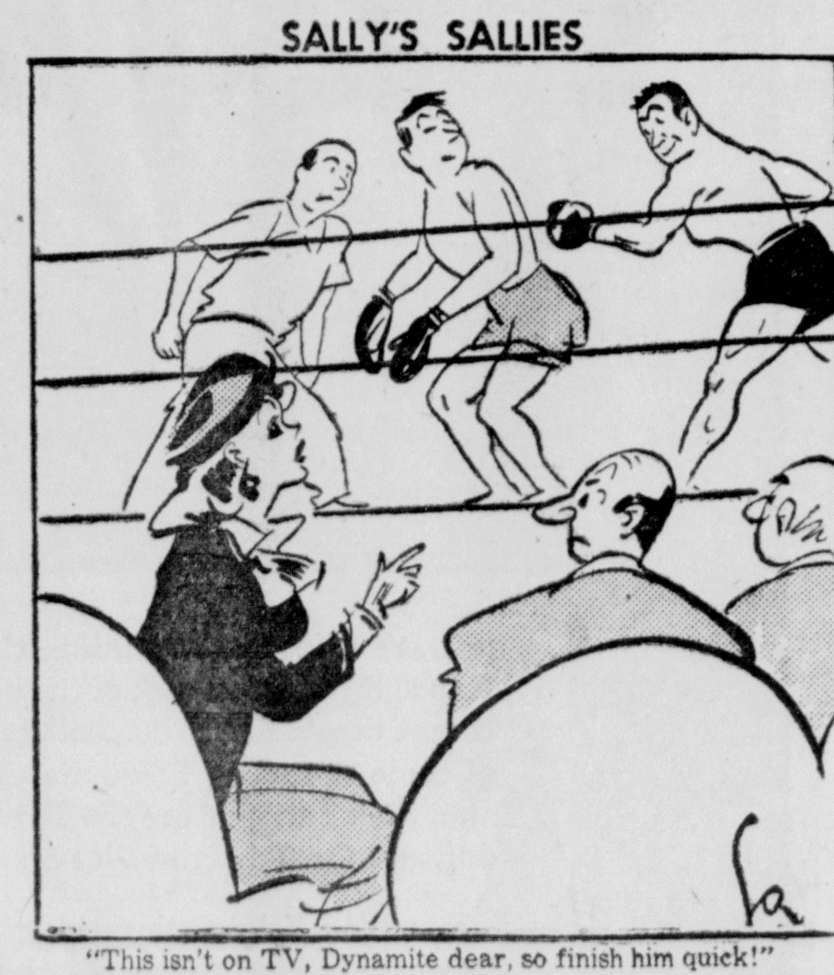

But that isn't all. The Laboratory of Biologics Control of the National Institute of Health of the United States Public Health Service conducts further checks before any lot of vaccine is released for use. Thus, every effort is made to protect your child.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. H. F.: Can kidney stones be dissolved, and should a person go on a special diet and eliminate alcohol and exercise?

Answer: Insofar as is known at present, there is no way of dissolving kidney stones. A special diet is advisable. Alcohol should not be employed. Exercise will be of no particular value.

An operation is usually necessary to eliminate the stones.

Mother-Daughter Banquet Is Enjoyed By 125 EUB Women

70-Year-Olds Are Honored

The service center of First Evangelical United Brethren church was decorated in an Indian theme for an annual Mother-Daughter banquet.

A total of 125 women and girls were present for the dinner. Umbrellas centered each table and raindrops moistening the foliage below represented the monsoon rains of India.

Nut cups were in the form of lotus flowers. Streamers of orange, green and white, the colors used in India in decorating the homes for Christian home festivals, were added to the scene.

Book marks at each place were printed in India by hand. The worship center included a scarf and vases from India. The Philatelic class was in charge of the decorations.

The Rev. O. F. Gibbs returned thanks preceding the dinner. Welcome was given by Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood Jr. Group singing was led by Miss Lucille Kirkwood with Mrs. James Pierce at the piano as accompanist.

Honored guests of the evening were the ladies of the society who are over 70 years of age. Each was presented with a corsage.

Mrs. Clarence Radcliff discussed the topic of the evening, "Christian Homes are Telling" and presented scripture reading from Proverbs 31, followed by prayer.

Following group singing of "Faith of Our Mothers", "Christian Homes in America" were presented by Mrs. Edwin Richardson, Mrs. Woodrow Carley, and Mrs. Leroy Thomas. The four wills, constructed by the group, included cleanliness, material things, ideals, and religious atmosphere. The roof of the home was "Let Your Light So Shine".

Christian homes in other lands also were presented. Mrs. Frank Hawkes spoke on China; Mrs. Ralph Long, the Philippines; and Mrs. Mable Estep, Africa.

Andrew Goeller sang, "Bless Our Home" and "Happy The Home When God is There".

Mrs. John Neuding served as chairman of a kitchen committee for the banquet, which was served by the men of the church.

Style Show Is Feature Of Meet At Scioto School

The Home Economics classes of the Scioto Township school presented their annual style show at the final Parent-Teacher Society meeting of the year.

Scioto school's newly organized band, under the direction of Mr. Rousch, played several numbers before curtain time.

A chorus offered background music for the show, which was presented on a stage decorated to resemble a large department store window, with the models posing as mannequins. Blooming dogwood formed the background, with window boxes of geraniums and potted plants adding color.

The seventh grade pupils modeled the aprons and cotton skirts which they had made during the past school year. The high school students each modeled two outfits made during the year. Most of the students had completed a two-piece sport costume or a school dress and a party dress. A top coat and a suit also were displayed.

A fashion show of Colonial times, the "Gay Nineties" and the "Roaring Twenties", completed the program. Costumes of Colonial America were depicted by two models, who presented the Minuet. The "Gay Nineties" were ushered in to the tune of "A Bicycle Built for Two" and a couple in the costume of the day appeared riding a bicycle.

Loaned for this occasion were dresses worn by Miss Clara Stewart, daughter of Dr. Stewart of Ashville, Mrs. M. L. Lyons, Mrs. Catherine Seeds, Mrs. Scott Robinson, Mrs. T. A. Boor and Mrs. Clara Hoover.

Miss Dheil Renick supplied a collection of gay nineties costumes, complete with accessories. Howard Neff served as model for a man's suit in her collection.

The style show, which played to a capacity audience, closed with the Charleston, presented by four girls dressed in the styles of the flapper era.

Mrs. Frank Morrison, Home Economics teacher, narrated the event. She was assisted by Miss Renick, who gave a personal history of the clothing in her collection.

Household Hints

There's a new canned macaroni out. It comes with a tomato-mushroom sauce in a 15-ounce can. Try heating and serving it with crisp strips of bacon and a green salad for lunch.

Cook sliced fresh mushrooms and strips of onion together in a little butter or margarine. Use as a filling for a supper omelet. Sprinkle the top of the omelet with lots of minced parsley or chives.

Quick dessert: fold baby-food chopped prunes into slightly sweetened whipped cream. Add a little vanilla flavoring and spoon into sherbet glasses. Chill and serve to delighted family or guests.

Add drained canned whole-kernel corn to a can of stewed tomatoes and heat for a good vegetable dish to offer with meat loaf. The vegetable combination will serve as a sauce.

Fill individual sponge-cake shells from the bakery with drained canned apricots; top with a fluff of whipped cream and garnish each dessert with a whole sweet strawberry. Nice for company, and quick, too!

NEW Red ROSE PIG STARTER PELLETS

Creep feed these vitamin packed pellets to young pigs at 5 days of age. Your pigs will reach early weaning at 4 to 5 weeks, maintain rapid growth — and soon be on their profit way to pork chops.

RED ROSE PIG STARTER PELLETS help to grow young pigs in a hurry for this reason: they supplement the sow's milk, and supply additional vitamins and antibiotics which permit the litter to be weaned earlier without setbacks in growth. The high antibiotics and vitamin levels in RED ROSE PIG STARTER PELLETS help prevent scouring, insure against anemia and develop vigor.

Pigs fed RED ROSE PIG STARTER PELLETS grow more uniformly and reach market weights earlier. So, feed these pellets to your pigs. Remember, better pork profits come from better early feeding.

Mother-Daughter Banquet Is Enjoyed By 125 EUB Women

70-Year-Olds Are Honored

The service center of First Evangelical United Brethren church was decorated in an Indian theme for an annual Mother-Daughter banquet.

A total of 125 women and girls were present for the dinner. Umbrellas centered each table and the raindrops moistening the foliage below represented the monsoon rains of India.

Nut cups were in the form of lotus flowers. Streamers of orange, green and white, the colors used in India in decorating the homes for Christian home festivals, were added to the scene.

Book marks at each place were printed in India by hand. The worship center included a scarf and vases from India. The Philathea class was in charge of the decorations.

The Rev. O. F. Gibbs returned thanks preceding the dinner. Welcome was given by Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood Jr. Group singing was led by Miss Lucille Kirkwood with Mrs. James Pierce at the piano as accompanist.

Honored guests of the evening were the ladies of the society who are over 70 years of age. Each was presented with a corsage.

Mrs. Clarence Radcliff discussed the topic of the evening, "Christian Homes are Telling," and presented scripture reading from Proverbs 31, followed by prayer.

Following group singing of "Faith of Our Mothers," "Christian Homes in America" were presented by Mrs. Edwin Richardson, Mrs. Woodrow Carley, and Mrs. Leroy Thomas. The four walls, constructed by the group, included cleanliness, material things, ideals, and religious atmosphere. The roof of the home was "Let Your Light So Shine".

Christian homes in other lands also were presented. Mrs. Frank Hawkes spoke on China; Mrs. Ralph Long, the Philippines; and Mrs. Mable Estep, Africa. Mrs. Andrew Goeller sang, "Bless Our Home" and "Happy The Home When God Is There".

Mrs. John Neuding served as chairman of a kitchen committee for the banquet, which was served by the men of the church.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved husband and father the late William H. Bost who passed away four years ago today, May 19, 1951.
They say time heals all sorrow
And helps us to forget
How much we miss you yet
God gave us strength to face it
And courage to bear the blow
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know
Sadly missed by wife Maggie Bost, son William E. Bost and grandchildren Jimmy and David Bost.

Few Mysteries Are Found In Monday's Title Fight

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—There never has been much mystery attached to the choice of Don Cockell, the round Briton, as the fighter most deserving of a title fight with Rocky Marciano on Monday night.

Al Weill, the champ's manager, simply wished to do his share in cementing relations between the two great English-speaking nations.

Not until now, however, have we seen an adequate explanation of the reason for gifting the great state of California with its first heavyweight championship that amounts to anything since the gaslit era. It seems there are rules in them that hills that were only waiting to be dug up by a smart operator who can read, as Weill undoubtedly can.

Do not have a copy of California commission's official booklet at hand, but a man who has waded through the volume claims there's a rule or two in there which might well have been written with Rocky's tender nose in mind.

One of Weill's problems, it will be recalled, was to appoint a worthy challenger who did not figure to be around long enough to reopen the gash which Ezzard Charles put in Rocky's bugle in the latter's most recent title defense here last summer. Only a hairline scar remains, but nobody can say for certain that it will not start gushing again the first time it is hit squarely.

Cockell, who had proved many times he could be hit by anybody, including Freddie Mills, was considered a logical challenger.

Now we'll tell you what this man claims the California code provides in its section under butts and cuts and blood flowing freely.

If he says the referee is forced to stop a bout in the very first round because of a cut, the fight automatically is ruled a draw. It makes no difference which man is bleeding. In the event of a draw, the champion would, of course, retain his bauble.

In succeeding rounds, there is a difference. If the man who is letting the blood is ahead on points when the referee steps in, he is the winner. If the wounded warrior is behind on the official score cards, he is the loser by a knock-out. In short, a boxer isn't necessarily whipped just because he is too cut up, in the ref's opinion, to remain on public display, as is the case elsewhere.

Training Grind Near End For Rock, Cockell

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The long training grind ends today for heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano and Don Cockell of England.

A couple of rounds for the unbeaten champ from America, three frames of light sparring for the English strong boy and thus will wind up weeks of hard work, all in preparation for their 15-round international struggle in Kezar Stadium Monday night.

The 30-year-old blockbuster from Brockton, Mass., is a hardened 188 pounds or so for the fifth defense of the title he won from Jersey Joe Walcott by a 13-round knock-out in Philadelphia Sept. 23, 1952.

Cockell, the British Empire champion, weighs around 208, and while he is big in arm, leg and round about the middle, he can never be called flabby.

That is just about the poundage they'll carry into the ring.

Rocky's manager, Al Weill, said his champ needs a final, if brief tune-up with the gloves at his Calistoga camp 75 miles north of here.

Marciano remains a heavy betting favorite, with little action reported in this respect. And among the visiting corps of press, it is almost impossible to locate a person who is picking the Englishman to win. Included are the British writers who have followed Don's rather long and somewhat puzzling career.

Argentina Slugger Wins Over Jones

NEW YORK (AP)—Manager Charley Johnson, who has two champions in featherweight king Sandy Saddler and light heavyweight ruler Archie Moore, hopes to make it three with Argentina's slugging middleweight, Eduardo Lause.

The socking South American, nicknamed "KO" for his string of kayos, showed he had plenty of courage to go with his wallop when he blasted out a decisive and unanimous 10-round decision over durable Ralph (Tiger) Jones in Madison Square Garden last night.

That made it 28 straight for the banty invader. He hasn't been beaten since Kid Gavilan outpointed him 32 months ago.

The victory was a costly one for the slashing gaucha. He was cut over each eye and wound up with 30 fancy stitches. Dr. Vincent Nardello said the gashes should side-line the happy, hem-stitched fighter for about two months.

Lause and the plugging, solid-chinned Jones really wowed the 2,819 fans (gross take $7,436) in the Garden and the television fans with their non-stop, virtually clinchless slugfest. Jones, a stocky aggressive Yonkers, N. Y., Negro, kept wading in and Lause kept popping him.

All three officials voted for Lause by 6-3-1 scores.

from bottom to tops in challenges.

The Reds, nudging Philadelphia for last place, were scheduled to face the Phillies twice in the last two days, but both contests were rained out.

Now the high and mighty Dodgers tangle with the Cincinnati club. Redeg Manager Birdie Tebbets plans to offer solid right-handed pitching competition in an attempt to hinder Brooklyn's right-handed batting strength.

Tebbetts has named Steve Ridzik, former Philly righthander, as starter today, with Gerry Staley, Johnny Klippstein or Corky Valentini expected to pitch in tomorrow's twin bill.

Eating Habits May Be Due For An Abrupt Change In Future

Pills, Seaweed May Be Diets Of Folks Here

Not All Is Fantasy To Real Scientists In Realm Of Food

Pickaway Countians may be in for a rude shock at the thought of what eating habits might be like 50 to 500 years from now.

It is not impossible to suppose that in a great farming community such as this that the menu of the future might contain nothing but pills, capsules and seaweed.

Scientific reports indicate that the population is growing much too fast while productive farmland in some cases is declining. Even the relatively small acreage taken by the state for the four-laning of Route 23 through Pickaway County has cut down, in the long run, on food.

Therefore, scientists reason, if the population is increasing while sources of food are not, a change will be necessary. True, it is argued that better farming and processing methods are putting more food on the table—but that is only for the present time, scientists will point out.

IT IS NOT unbelievable that an entire meal in the future will consist of one or two or three pills, capsules or tablets, garnished with seaweed.

The seaweed bother you? Scientists have been conducting studies on this and report that there is a lot of "food" in seaweed.

Pickaway Countians do not experience shortages of drinking water as large cities sometimes do in hot summers. Scientists have, for a long time, been seeking a way to convert the vast supplies of salt water into drinking water.

But—scientists can be wrong. There is no mention of future wars, which easily cut down the population. There is no mention of doing any "horse trading" with planets in outer space, which may have food galore and no one to eat it.

Also, there is the immediate future to consider and the advancements planned for that period.

FOR EXAMPLE, residents here may soon be able to go to their favorite food stores and purchase a package of food which will actually cook itself within the container.

Meanwhile, please pass another glob of potatoes!

Western World Wondering What Is Next Soviet Move

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

What can the Western world expect from the Soviet Union now? Amid international excitement over prospects for a top-level meeting of the Big Four powers, Moscow has just restated its policies for the instruction of world communism.

Communists are being told: The Soviet Union is obliged to execute a tactical retreat at this moment in history, because of both internal and external conditions. But there is no change in basic, long-range Communist goals.

The last two editions of Kommunist, the monthly theoretical publication of world communism, carried articles intended not for the outside world but for the enlightenment of Communists. These articles made it clear the Soviet Union was speaking with two voices—one to the outside world and the other to the Communist movement.

Internally, for those who followed the line of Georgi M. Malenkov, the note is ominous. The articles warn that there have been from Columbus; the boy had pedaled his bicycle all the way and didn't even intend to stop here.

Department of relief — City police have finally been able to change over to summer shirts.

Curiosity department — Recently, a huge crowd was seen down by the Scioto River underneath the River Bridge on W. Main St. Passersby wondered if there had been a drowning. Further investigation proved that it was a Baptism.

Ignorance is bliss—Two ladies defiantly walking across N. Court St. at Watt St. against the red light and casting scowling looks at impatient motorists.

Love's labor lost—School zone markings were repainted on N. Court St. near the High St. intersection. . . . but the much-faded school markings farther up the street near Seyfert remain so dull you can hardly see them.

"antiparty" attitudes in high places, along with "statements of woebegone economists attempting to revise the vital position of Marxist-Leninist political economy concerning development of production of the means of production."

That referred to the new all-out Soviet concentration on heavy industry since Malenkov left the Soviet premiership with a confession of failure. He symbolized a "new course" program of more for the Soviet consumer. Kommunist says those guilty of such sins helped destroy party discipline.

Grimly, Kommunist recalls Stalin "defeated the enemies of Leninism," a reference to the blood purge of the '30s.

That was the background internally in the Communist world as the Soviet Union moved boldly on the international stage this week. The greatest Soviet worry is the integration of a rearmored Germany in the West's defenses. In effect, this would immobilize world communism for a long time to come. Here again Moscow speaks in two voices. To the outside world the promise is of peace, but to world communism there is a slightly different note.

Nothing, said Kommunist, should be permitted to interfere with the "strengthening of the defense might" and increasing "the battle-readiness" of Soviet forces. Nothing must interfere, in the Soviet Union or the satellite nations, with the development of heavy industry.

Cincy Drug Store Walkout Ended

CINCINNATI (AP) — A two-day strike by 65 employees in four H.D. & S. Gallaher Agency drug stores ended yesterday.

The stores are located in Hamilton and in Cheviot and Silverton, both near Cincinnati.

George Percara and Hershel White, officials of the AFL Retail Clerks' Union and the AFL Hotel and Restaurant Workers' Union, said the new contract provides for more pay and a new insurance program. It also is retroactive to last Jan. 1, they added.

Amount of the pay increase was not disclosed.

Ohio Employment Payrolls Climb

COLUMBUS (AP) — The Bureau of Business Research at Ohio State University says Ohio payrolls in March were up two per cent over February, and up four per cent over March 1954.

Bureau figures indicated that Ohio's construction industry had the largest February-to-March increase, spanning an eight per cent far removed from the days of a bullheaded single dictator, Stalin. But on the domestic front, the policy rundown has a striking similarity to the days of Stalin.

CD Training School Session Underway

CAMP PERRY (AP) — A two-day school opened Friday to train civil defense personnel for the emergency duties they would perform if American cities were subject to enemy attacks.

About 3,000 persons will participate in the "school for combined emergency services" at this military camp, now used primarily to train National Guard members. The school's purpose is to increase operational efficiency of civil defense forces within Ohio.

Most of the trainees come from the civil defense organization's 4th region, located in northwest Ohio. But other parts of Ohio and other states are represented.

Eating Habits May Be Due For An Abrupt Change In Future

Pills, Seaweed May Be Diets Of Folks Here

Not All Is Fantasy To Real Scientists In Realm Of Food

Pickaway Countians may be in for a rude shock at the thought of what eating habits might be like 50 to 500 years from now.

It is not impossible to suppose that in a great farming community such as this that the menu of the future might contain nothing but pills, capsules and seaweed.

Scientific reports indicate that the population is growing much too fast while productive farmland in some cases is declining. Even the relatively small acreage taken by the state for the four-laning of Route 23 through Pickaway County has cut down, in the long run, on food.

Therefore, scientists reason, if the population is increasing while sources of food are not, a change will be necessary. True, it is argued that better farming and processing methods are putting more food on the table—but that is only for the present time, scientists will point out.

IT IS NOT unbelievable that an entire meal in the future will consist of one or two or three pills, capsules or tablets, garnished with seaweed.

The seaweed bother you? Scientists have been conducting studies on this and report that there is a lot of "food" in seaweed.

Pickaway Countians do not experience shortages of drinking water as large cities sometimes do in hot summers. Scientists have, for a long time, been seeking a way to convert the vast supplies of salt water into drinking water.

But—scientists can be wrong. There is no mention of future wars, which easily cut down the population. There is no mention of doing any "horse trading" with planets in outer space, which may have food galore and no one to eat it.

Also, there is the immediate future to consider and the advancements planned for that period.

FOR EXAMPLE, residents here may soon be able to go to their favorite food stores and purchase a package of food which will actually cook itself within the container.

Meanwhile, please pass another glob of potatoes!

Western World Wondering What Is Next Soviet Move

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

What can the Western world expect from the Soviet Union now? Amid international excitement over prospects for a top-level meeting of the Big Four powers, Moscow has just restated its policies for the instruction of world communism.

Communists are being told: The Soviet Union is obliged to execute a tactical retreat at this moment in history, because of both internal and external conditions. But there is no change in basic, long-range Communist goals.

The last two editions of Kommunist, the monthly theoretical publication of world communism, carried articles intended not for the outside world but for the enlightenment of Communists. These articles made it clear the Soviet Union was speaking with two voices—one to the outside world and the other to the Communist movement.

Internally, for those who followed the line of Georgi M. Malenkov, the note is ominous. The articles warn that there have been from Columbus; the boy had pedaled his bicycle all the way and didn't even intend to stop here.

Department of relief — City police have finally been able to change over to summer shirts.

Curiosity department — Recently, a huge crowd was seen down the Scioto River underneath the River Bridge on W. Main St. Passersby wondered if there had been a drowning. Further investigation proved that it was a Baptism.

Ignorance is bliss—Two ladies defiantly walking across N. Court St. at Watt St. against the red light and casting scowling looks at impatient motorists.

Love's labor lost—School zone markings were repainted on N. Court St. near the High St. intersection. . . but the much-faded school markings farther up the street near Seyfert remain so dull you can hardly see them.

NEVER BEFORE SO MUCH FOR SO LITTLE

The prescription you buy today might seem expensive, even though six hundred years ago even a king's ransom couldn't have bought it—because it didn't exist. But when you consider how much pain, how many days, weeks, months, even years taken-for-granted drugs cut off of illness time . . . then a modern prescription becomes a terrific bargain! Next time your doctor prescribes such a bargain, bring it to us for accurate, competent compounding.

"antiparty" attitudes in high places, along with "statements of woebegone economists attempting to revise the vital position of Marxist-Leninist political economy concerning development of production of the means of production."

That referred to the new all-out Soviet concentration on heavy industry since Malenkov left the Soviet premiership with a confession of failure. He symbolized a "new course" program of more for the Soviet consumer, Kommunist says those guilty of such sins helped destroy party discipline.

Grimly, Kommunist recalls Stalin "defeated the enemies of Leninism," a reference to the blood purge of the '30s.

That was the background internally in the Communist world as the Soviet Union moved boldly on the international stage this week. The greatest Soviet worry is the integration of a rearmament Germany in the West's defenses. In effect, this would immobilize world communism for a long time to come. Here again Moscow speaks in two voices. To the outside world the promise is of peace, but to world communism there is a slightly different note.

Nothing, said Kommunist, should be permitted to interfere with the "strengthening of the defense might" and increasing "the battle-readiness" of Soviet forces. Nothing must interfere in the Soviet Union or the satellite nations, with the development of heavy industry.

Moscow, Kommunist indicates, has no intention of relinquishing its direction of potent fifth column—the Communist parties, various "peace partisan" movements dominated by them, and many important trade unions dominated by the Reds outside the Soviet orbit. The instruction is that Communists outside the orbit must tailor their programs to fit Soviet policy.

For the Western Communist parties, particularly in France, Italy and Germany, Kommunist tells the faithful that the battle against Western rearmament must begin at factory levels.

On the international front, the Soviet Union can be expected to make a play for West German public opinion when the Big Four meets this summer. It will also make a big play for world opinion as the champion of peace. But the Soviet Union will not settle in Germany for anything less than an ironclad guarantee of German neutrality and the country's complete divorce from Western defense arrangements—a high price for Western Europe to pay.

On the home front, the peaceful tone seems to fade away. Kommunist makes it clear that from Soviet and satellite workers the greatest possible production will be demanded at the lowest possible cost.

To the outside world, the Soviet foreign policy has the look of shrewdness, and even brilliance

Cincy Drug Store Walkout Ended

CINCINNATI (AP) — A two-day strike by 65 employees in four H.D. & S. Gallaher Agency drug stores ended yesterday.

The stores are located in Hamilton and in Cheviot and Silverton, both near Cincinnati.

George Percara and Hershel White, officials of the AFL Retail Clerks' Union and the AFL Hotel and Restaurant Workers' Union, said the new contract provides for more pay and a new insurance program. It also is retroactive to last Jan. 1, they added.

Amount of the pay increase was not disclosed.

Ohio Employment Payrolls Climb

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Bureau of Business Research at Ohio State University says Ohio payrolls in March were up two per cent over February, and up four per cent over March 1954.

Bureau figures indicated that Ohio's construction industry had the largest February-to-March increase, spanning an eight per cent far removed from the days of a bullheaded single dictator, Stalin. But on the domestic front, the policy rundown has a striking similarity to the days of Stalin.
